SUMMARY

Product-minded housing operator who has designed, tested, and iterated on residential products. I bring hands-on experience in the housing industry - launching a coliving product from zero, running pricing experiments, and building retention systems. My approach combines deep housing knowledge with rapid product experimentation and data-driven decision making.

For Homeward: I bring hands-on housing product experience — launched a residential product from zero, ran pricing experiments, and built retention systems that worked.
